Introduction

War Child is a child focused organisation that continuously enhances its services to children affected by war and conflict. This includes striving to work with a range of different stakeholders and able to mobilise and provide services and technical assistance within and outside the organisation, as well as across its programme teams in various programme locations in the country. Child protection, mental health and psychosocial support, education, youth and livelihood are priority areas of our work in South Sudan.

As part of its Upper Nile program, War Child is planning to provide technical support to key stakeholders in Malakal County, Upper Nile with the view of strengthening their capacity on planning, implementation and monitoring of community led total sanitation initiative (CLTSH). The role of a consultant will be contributing to the objective of the project through training and technical support. The project prioritizes a participatory approach to hygiene and sanitation work whereby communities recognize the problem of open defecation and take collective action to clean up and become "open defecation free".

Objectives of the consultancy service

The main objective of the consultancy service is to support the kick-off of the community led total sanitation initiative in Malakal County, Upper Nile State through training and technical support to key stakeholders at state and county level.

Participants of the training

- Relevant state and County level government office representatives
- WASH committee representatives
- Hygiene promoters and volunteers
- Other relevant stakeholders

Key objectives and deliverables include:

- To increase understanding and knowledge of participants on CLTSH approach.
- Equip participants with CLTSH facilitation skills.
- To introduce CLTSH program monitoring and follow up mechanism to participants
- To assist participants on CLTSH planning and action plan development
- Develop/adapt CLTSH guideline and tools for use by key stakeholders including by Hygiene Promoters
- Conduct coaching and follow up support to county level stakeholders
- Report on pre and post workshop results
- Submit final report

Duration of the consultancy service

The consultant is expected to provide technical support for 20 working days including 5-7 days training. The working days shall be distributed over a period of 2-month.

REQUIREMENTS

- The qualified candidate will be a candidate with BSC/MSC/ degree in public health, hygiene and sanitation or any other CLTSH/WASH or related fields along with community led approach training facilitation experience in South Sudan
