Deadline for application: 09 AUGUST 2024
Report to work : As soon as Possible

Background:

The Whitaker Peace & Development Initiative (WPDI) operates the Youth Peacemaker Network (YPN) as its flagship program in South Sudan in partnership with several entities including among others UNESCO, UN Women, Zain and Ericsson to empower young people as leaders of peace and development in their communities through a unique mix of peacebuilding, conflict resolution, mediation, life skills, ICT training, vocational training, and youth-led community projects as well as programs promoting peace through the arts and sports.

WPDI is an international non-profit organization founded by the UNESCO Special Envoy for Peace and Reconciliation, Forest Whitaker, with the mission of helping societies affected by destructive conflicts and gang violence transform into safer and more-productive communities. Since its inception in 2012, WPDI has created and managed peacebuilding programs in South Sudan, Uganda, Mexico, the United States, and South Africa. WPDI collaborates with a range of local and international, public and private partners to support its mission.

WPDI as a part of consortium that is led by IOM will be implementing under the YPN Program a Reconciliation, Stabilization and Resilience project through the United Nations Multi-Partner Trust Fund in Lainya, Yei, Morobo and Kajo Keji. In close coordination with the other consortium members, WPDI will be working to provide training for youth and community members in Business & Entrepreneurship, as well as conducting Business

Plan Competitions for the participants of the trainings and formulating community-led Income Generating Projects (IGPs) through innovative methods that it has employed across the country in community engagements.
