Description

Jonglei State Women Association (JSWA) is a non-governmental organization, registered under South Sudan non-governmental act, 2003. It was formed as a result of human rights violation by men at home, offices and all other social interactive levels where women are discriminated, neglected and violently dispossessed of their fundamental rights in both of the political and sociopolitical areas of social life. The organization was formed mainly to focus on urban-rural community development in various aspects for self-reliance and peaceful coexistence of communities by advocating on behalf of and for the protection of women and child rights in Jonglei state. Since its formation in 2008, JSWA has been involved in combating violations of women's rights and institutional discrimination fuel by biased customs and traditions. This is done mainly by advocating for and promoting women participation and rights, land rights, women economic empowerment, media democratization, peace building and conflict mitigation in Jonglei state. The JSWA partnered with UN Women, NPA, SFCG, NRC and MDM to deliver Good health and Ending Violence Against Women and Girls in protracted crisis situations.
